Meteorologist's View

Whilst morning conditions may start of promising, conditions on the hills will quickly deteriorate as the rain, low cloud and strong winds arrive from the southwest. Significant wind chill is expected on summits exacerbated by the wet conditions and strong winds.

Forecast for Thursday 26 Sep 2024

Weather: Staying cloudy with outbreaks of rain lasting throughout much of the day which will be accompanied by some strong and rather gusty winds. Rain slowly clears overnight, leading to some cooler and drier conditions.

Maximum wind: East-southeast 25-30 mph gusting 35-45mph becoming northeasterly.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 10%.

Low Cloud and visibility: Extensive low cloud covering hills above 400-500m for much of the day, lowering at times to 300m in rain. As the rain slowly clears overnight, cloud bases lift and clouds begin to dissipate leading to some clear spells. Moderate visibility at best, readily falling to poor or very poor.

Temperature: Valleys: Plus 9 Celsius becoming Plus 11 Celsius.
At 800m: Plus 5 Celsius becoming Plus 2 Celsius.
Freezing level: Just above summits.
